

7, 7, 7

Give ~~ME~~ MXF

J475 Cutting Class Intros and tags for video Spring 22

Blake McCoy IN: T1 11:47:34 - noise T2- 11:49:00

Hi, I'm Blake McCoy. When you think of wine, you probably think of Italy, France, and Napa Valley. But another hub for award winning wine is quickly expanding- America's heartland. I traveled to the rolling hills of southwestern Wisconsin to uncork this winery boom in the upper Midwest

Blake McCoy Out: T1- 11:49:30

Wild Hills Winery is located outside of Muscoda, WI. To learn more about wineries in Wisconsin, visit WisconsinWineries.org. And, to learn more about midwestern grape growing, check out NorthernGrapesProject.org.

Abie Thiel In: 11:53:23 -T1 11:54:14 -T2

Advancements in medicine have grown by leaps and bounds. But problems do still remain. Getting insurance companies on board and finding the right solution are often elusive. And sometimes, the medical community is simply stumped. Trea Klingele has dealt with this during her times in and out of the hospital since third grade. But all of these problems hit their peak as Trea's birthday approached this year...

Abie Thiel Out: T1- 11:55:09

So Trea got her second chance at life with the approval of her ear device just days before her birthday. Since this video was recorded, Trea has been in the hospital a couple times for more health issues, but the experiences of this year have taught Trea two things – how to fight with joy and how to make the most of the time she has.

Brandon Landsberg IN: ~~T1- 12:02:18~~ T1- 12:02:18 T2- 12:02:55

In 2015, Developer Core Spaces built the first luxury apartment in the main State Street area, here in Madison called the Hub. Since then, other large scale apartment projects have popped up raising the average cost of living in Madison and displacing small businesses wherever they go. Now a new property is on its way. How much will it affect the look of this historic Midwest city?

Brandon Landsberg Out: T1- 12:03:47 T2- 12:03:47 T3- 12:04:24

Although the Liv Madison project promises a step in the right direction with its affordability housing agreement, will the 10% offering be enough to really make a difference for Madison residents who feel like they are being priced out? Only time will tell but from the amount of construction and small businesses that have been displaced already, this project may well have already left its mark on the State Street area and the city.

Caroline Brown IN: T1-12:07:00

Hi, I'm Caroline Brown. Have you ever wondered what it means to be an online influencer who profits off posts across social media sites? As a UW Madison student, Paris Boswell has a most unusual life. She does YouTube, TikTok and Instagram as her job. What is her major? It's not coursework--it's her life as a social media influencer. And that means her life online affects her life offline. What goes on behind the camera that her viewers don't see?

Caroline Brown Out: T1-12:07:41-^{ng false start} T2-12:08:26 T3-12:08:54
What remains to be seen for Paris is how drastically will her life change as she transitions to her full-time job after graduation. Her YouTube channel will document these personal shifts as she moves on from UW-Madison.

Courtney Bingham IN: T1-12:10:50

A common struggle for new Black Madison residents is finding somewhere to get their hair done. There are no chains like Supercuts or Great Clips that specialize in kinky hair. But we did find two Madison-born heroes looking to become pillars of their community.

Courtney Bingham Out: T1-12:11:24

"Booheem" and "Tea" are just two examples of the few Black barbers and stylists around the city. The work they do brings smiles to those they interact with. More importantly, they provide a space of community for those who otherwise wouldn't have it.

Grace Hodgman IN: T1-12:13:17 T2-12:13:54

As UW-Madison presents their first musical since the pandemic, understudies are more important than ever. Who are they? Why are they so key to the show? I saw how these unsung heroes wait in the wings, ready to save the day.

Grace Hodgman Out: T1-12:14:23-^{wings} T2-12:15:13

On and off stage, these actors may not get the recognition they deserve, but they are just as vital to any production as the lead actors are. UW-Madison's production of "Heathers the Musical" has sold out every single show, and these understudies played a large in role in the success of the performances.

part

Grace Houdek In: T1-12:17:38 T2- T3-12:18:55

'Living your life to the fullest' can sometimes be a lot easier said than done – especially after living through a global pandemic. But Larry Chief Soletto has always kept his chin up as he took advantage of everything life has to offer. And, after taking it all in, Chief hopes to give it all back... to his community and daughter.

Grace Houdek Out: T1-12:19:22

Despite his health conditions and battles during the pandemic, Chief sees the good in each day and strives to be a better man for his family and community. Celebrating his 79th birthday next month, he looks forward to another bright year around the sun.

Jake Bernstein In:

~~T1-12:25:07~~ T1-12:25:07

Hi, my name is Jake Bernstein and I decided to look into a different side of playing video games, playing video games competitively. This has been increasing in popularity and the prize pools for major tournaments have been above six figures. Yet, for one of the most watched games, the Super Smash Bros. series, the patronage, and support has not been there. Despite this adversity, the Smash community has continued to grow and create an accepting and warm environment. I had the pleasure of interviewing Terrion Sumner, Dane Hansen, and Adam Levin.

Jake Bernstein Out: T1-12:25:40 T2-12:26:03

After spending time with the pro players, I walked away with much more than soundbites. There was an extended invitation, to not only me but to anyone who wants to join the thrill of competition. If you're interested in competing in any video game, check for any local tournaments. They'd be happy to have you.

Kelsey Tehan In: T1-12:28:25 T2-12:29:10

In 2020, UW-Madison's opened a brand-new building with the promise of leading animal agriculture into the future. The world class facilities made this building the most complicated project in the state of Wisconsin and the new standard for meat science programs going forward. What is it exactly that this building can do? While the possibilities seem endless, one thing we do know is the lasting impact it will have on the community.

Kelsey Tehan Out: T1-12:29:56

Linking the incredible scientific activities that happen in the building to selling meat products at Bucky's Varsity Meats is just one way the Meat Sciences and Animal Biologics Discovery Building is reaching the community. You can check out the building and shop the local products at Varsity Meats, Wednesday through Saturday from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m.

T1-12:32:14

Khloe Rustan In:

T2-12:32:57 T3-12:33:47

Emi Shermeta, a senior here at the University of Wisconsin Madison, qualified for the 2022 Boston Marathon, after only completing 2 full marathons. Running Boston is more than just a race, it's comradery, thrill, and signifies dedication for runners everywhere. But for Emi it goes beyond that.

Khloe Rustan Out: T1-12:34:15 T2-12:34:47 F106 T3-12:35:12 F106

Emi finished the marathon in just under 4 hours, completing a personal goal. The Boston Marathon is just the start for Emi as she envisions herself running marathons nationwide and becoming a well-known runner. If she was able to qualify for Boston after just 2 years of marathon running, her possibilities are endless. T4-12:35:27

Kim Leadholm In: ~~T1-12:38:09~~ T1-12:40:05

Did you ever hear the saying in 1492 Columbus sailed the ocean blue? That was often taught while learning about the discovery of America. But in past years, it's become clear Native Americans were those who discovered America (they were here first)...not Christopher Columbus.

The records of history are how we understand the past. They show us the effects of certain decisions and provide a story of how we got to where we are today... but what happens if that story is wrong?

Kim Leadholm Out: T1-12:40:42 T2-12:41:08

The way we understand history should be evolving. History is not inherently false, but it also should not be taken as the complete truth. We should always question where we get our information and the accuracy of our sources... because without this, major perspectives of generations and important events could be missed.

Meredith Opie IN: T1-12:43:03

For college athletes across the country, the struggle of balancing mental health and a sport is nothing new—for Emma Little, who plays soccer at the University of Illinois-Springfield, mental health is a daily battle on and off of the field. As her final year of college soccer approaches, she starts to discover who she is off the field and how mental health has been a part of her journey as an athlete.

Meredith Opie Out: T1-12:43:39 F106 T2-12:43:55

Emma is still figuring out how to balance mental health issues as a college athlete. Looking forward, she has hope that as she transitions out of college and into the workplace, she'll continue to learn more about herself and how to best take care of her mind and body.

Nick Bruesewitz In: T1-12:46:29 T2-12:47:31

Sports betting is becoming more and more popular across the United States, but Wisconsin has lagged behind. With other states in the Midwest making it legal, pressure is mounting for state lawmakers in Wisconsin to do the same. An expert in the process, is "Betting on Bucky" to make a change.

Nick Bruesewitz Out: T1-12:48:01 T2-12:48:28 T3-12:48:59

Although there is no official proposal legislature on the table for fully legalized sports betting in Wisconsin, Schoenke's words offer a glimmer of hope for those patiently waiting. In the meantime, cheeseheads will just have to make their way to the Oneida and Potawatomi Casinos for their sports betting needs.